Black is back and it's taking form in this season's men's chronograph collection. Subtle, slim timepieces are being taken over by the trend of sleek, stealthy models. If ever there was a time to flaunt your masculinity, this would be it.

Skeleton timepieces prove it's what's on the inside that matters most. Observe the complexities of movement and structure in these exposed models which require a beautiful murgence of both watchmaking and jewelry expertise. As these luxury brands push the boundaries from practical to high performance, the technology improves, as seen in Tag Heuer's first dual tourbillon model operating at 360,000 vibrations per hour, making it the fastest tourbillon in the world.
